Thassos – the greenest Greek island is known for its rows of olive groves and pine forests in the mountains. That is why it is called "floating forest". The temperature throughout the year is pleasant, and the air is filled with the most beautiful scents. Thassos is an island in the northern Aegean. It was inhabited in prehistoric times. Ever since the ancient times, Thassos was famous for its gold mines and for its high quality marble stone. Widely known for its clean beaches, hospitality, delicious wine and excellent honey. History of the island extends into ancient times. Many archaeological treasures are preserved until today. The roads are very well made, and passing along the entire island, allowing access to all beaches and bays. The capital Limenas (Thassos), is also the largest trading port and center. Emeraldy green sea water temperature is about 24 degrees already in June.
